

Special Session in March Is Speculated

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval Faubus today called legislators' predictions of a March special session "speculation" but added "they are men who are acquainted with the situation and know something must be done."

To that extent he added credence to the statements of some legislators who have predicted a special session will be called by March to consider the Little Rock integration impasse.

Faubus said, however, the March legislative session predictions did not come from anything he had said to the legislators.

"Many of them have said they wanted to express themselves on the issue," Faubus said.

Asked if he thought such a session would be better timed before the summer election primaries, Faubus answered:

"I could be held after the primaries but there would be very little time left before the next school year starts."

The Governor, asked about integration as a political consideration, replied, "I wish that integration was not a issue in politics."

But it is one and it must be faced by public officials whether they like it or not. The issue is here and everyone is well aware that it is going to stay alive regardless of what anyone does. There is not one word of truth in the report that I want to keep it alive for political advantage.

"No one relishes the thought that he has to face this problem," Faubus said he had no word on a rumor that the National Guard troops are going to be withdrawn soon from Central High School and leave the guarding of the nine Negro students to local law enforcement.

"I have heard nothing about the local police playing nursemaid to the Negro students in the school," he said.

Arkanson Goes to Prison in Louisiana

CAMERON, La. (UP)—A 27-year-old Hot Springs, Ark., bartender struts a prison term in Angu State Penitentiary today.

James McClain was sentenced to serve six years when he pleaded guilty to four charges of theft and forgery.

He admitted he stole four civil defense payroll checks last August and cashed them. He was picked up earlier this month at At-Liquereque, N. M., and returned to face charges.

Jordan Asks Removal of U. S. Truce Observer

JERUSALEM (AP)—A Jordanian demand for the removal of a U. S. observer serving as U. N. truce observer today threatened a breakdown in the mediation of disputes along the Jordan-Israeli border.

As new frontier clashes were reported, Jordan announced that it no longer would accept the truce recommendations of U. S. Marine Col. Byron Leary.

But a U. N. spokesman said Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld immediately told the American government that Leary continues to enjoy his full personal confidence.

Jordan's demand for Leary's removal apparently was prompted by the officer's mediation efforts in an Israeli convoy incident last week which touched off a series of border clashes.

Jordan charged the Israelis violated the armistice agreement by sending a convoy with highly flammable benzene to a hospital in the Mt. Scopus demilitarized area within the Arab part of Jerusalem.

Israel then asked to negotiate with Jordan, citing a section of the armistice agreement applying to the movement of traffic on roads in the Bethlehem-Jordan area.

MacMillan Goes to France Over Tunisia Issue

PARIS (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain arrived today to try to calm French anger over U. S. British arms shipments to Tunisia, an issue menacing NATO unity.

Macmillan plunged into his task the moment he stepped off the plane from London, declaring in a statement he was determined to see that France and Britain stay on friendly terms.

"We are in the same boat—don't let us or anyone else try to rock it," Macmillan said.

Macmillan was greeted by Premier Felix Gaillard, who is openly angry over what he calls a lack of Western support for France's policies in North Africa.

The atmosphere was neither exactly warm nor noticeably cool as the two heads of government greeted each other.

The two leaders were expected to extend their talks into the night. Macmillan will return to England tomorrow.

Gaillard has hinted strongly that unless some new and solid basis for understanding is found between France and her two main NATO partners, the Dec. 16 NATO summit conference will get a cold shoulder here in the host nation.

"French yellow posters were plastered on Paris walls proclaiming 'The British and Americans have given arms to the Algerian rebels,'"

Two rightist parties have called for demonstrations and police officials were on the alert, guarding against outbreaks in the Place de la Concorde near the U. S. Embassy.

One is the extreme rightist Young Nation movement, which called on its followers to gather at the embassy.

The other is Jean-Baptiste Biaggi's new Revolutionary Patriot party (PPR), also rightist.

Biaggi in his call said, "Not content to send arms to the rebels by way of (Tunisian) President Habib Bourguiba, Macmillan comes to Paris directly to dictate orders to our government."

Defense Minister Jacques Chaban Delmas told an audience at Bordeaux, "We won't put up with the idea there are first- and second-class allies in NATO, with those in second place always obliged to say 'Yes, I prefer the risk of fighting to that of servitude.'"

The Little Rock attorney told newsmen at a press conference last night his state had made great strides in racial relations and had started integrating its schools peacefully.

He said a "modern and not radical" integration plan for Central High School in Little Rock had been agreed to by a majority of the city's residents.

But he said Gov. Faubus let himself be a "guinea pig" for the testing of states rights.

Arkansas did not deserve to be a states rights testing group, McMath asserted. He is here at the invitation of Teamsters Union Joint Council 13, headed by Harold Gibbons.

He predicted that National Guard forces would be withdrawn soon, leaving any integration problems which may arise to the city police in Little Rock.

Some persons in Little Rock, the Arkansas Democrat said, have made a concerted effort to keep the integration issue alive there.

McMath said a states rights party would have a hard time taking on the responsibility which the federal government now assumes in such projects as river and highway development.

"States rights sound good," he said, "but when we talk of states responsibilities it's not too realistic."

Auto Hurls Through Farm House, 1 Dead

RESELU, Calif. (AP)—An automobile hurtled through a house where a family of three lay asleep last night, killing the man, injuring his pregnant wife and narrowly missing his 2-year-old daughter.

The driver, a neighbor, was booked on suspicion of manslaughter. Police said he failed to pass a sobriety test.

The householder, Howard H. Hamilton, 28, an engineer, died en route to a hospital. His wife Carmella, 24, was critically injured.

The crib of their daughter June was shattered, but the child, pinned between a wall and tree car was unhurt.

The driver, Alex J. Magas, 39, a barber, was unhurt.

Police reconstructed the tragedy from witnesses accounts this way:

Magas struck a parked car and rebounded into the rear of another owned by Roy Webb. He sped away with Webb pursuing him.

Magas sideswiped another car near his home. He passed his own house and continued to where the street came to a dead end.

The Hamilton house blocked the path of his car. It slammed into the front bedroom where Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton were sleeping.

They were dragged under the car wheels as the vehicle plowed through the house into a rear bedroom where little June was asleep.

The front of the car emerged from a rear wall into the back yard.

McMath Says State Against a Third Party

scientific needs can be accelerated by closer co-operation among the armed service, among companies working on the missile program and companies which could be brought into the program, and by co-operation and sharing of secrets with Great Britain but with other NATO countries and with other allies.

Teller said there was some danger in sharing secrets with other countries, but said that in view of Russian advances and scientific knowledge this was not a danger such as might be the case in a field in which the United States has a monopoly.

"We must accept the danger," he said. "The danger of not co-operating would be greater."

distant target as Houston, Tex., with an intercontinental ballistic missile, or will have in a short time.

Dr. Teller, the opening witness in a Senate inquiry into the U.S. missile program, declared "we will disregard at our greatest peril" the possibility that the Russians have an ICBM of such accuracy.

Teller is a University of California scientist who played a major part in the development of the H-bomb.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, chairman of the Preparedness subcommittee, conducting the hearings, said in his opening statement that the United States has "lost an important battle of technology" to Soviet Russia.

But he declared, the "lost battle" represented by Russia's launching of two satellites is "not a defeat—it is a challenge."

After Teller had described to the subcommittee the conclusions he drew from the launching of the second Russian satellite he

Search Continues for Landslide Victims

PRINCE HUPERT, B. C. (UP)—Workmen today continued to search for victims of last Friday's landslide, while shifting rocks overhead hinted that Mr. Hayes had not finished her ramnauage.

About 25 persons vacated their homes Sunday in the face of a possible repeat of the slide which killed seven persons.

This port city of 10,000 was slowly resuming contact with the outside world after two days of isolation.

was asked by counsel Edwin L. Weist: "Then you believe Russia now has an intercontinental ballistic missile?"

"I certainly cannot say with complete certainty," Teller replied. "But they have said they do. There is every reason to believe they have it, at least at the stage that they have constructed it and tested it."

"To what extent they have operational capability, I do not know. I certainly hope they do not."

Weist then quoted Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, head of the radiation laboratory at the University of California where Teller works as a physicist, as saying last week he believed the Russians could hit Houston with an ICBM.

"Do you believe that, too?" the counsel asked.

"Yes, sir," said Teller. But he added he wanted to make clear he did not think of Houston as "a pinpoint."

The large hearing room was only partly filled as Teller began his testimony. Ten of the 15 members of the Armed Services Committee were on hand.

In his opening statement, Johnson said the subcommittee believes the people should be informed fully of the military situation which faces the United States.

Nothing that subcommittee members had been briefed confidentially on developments, Johnson said. "I have found no cause for comfort in the information we have been given. We do not feel that this information must be withheld from the public."

"We have lost as important battle in technology to Russia. That is self-evident in the two Sputniks that are in space. But a lost battle is not a defeat; it is a challenge for America to respond with her best efforts."

"There were no Republicans and no Democrats after Pearl Harbor. There were no isolationists. There were no defeatists of any stripe."

"I do not feel that we have as much time as we had after Pearl Harbor. But we do have time; determination and will power to accomplish what we must. I don't believe it is time for either a siesta or for hysteria."

Johnson said the country is "disturbed over the tremendous military and scientific achievement of Russia."

"Our people have believed that in the field of scientific weapons and in technology and science we were well ahead of Russia," Johnson said. "With the launching of Sputnik I and II, and with the information at hand of Russia's strength, our supremacy, and even our equality has been challenged."

"We must meet this challenge quickly and effectively in all of its aspects."

Teller, a University of California scientist who has been called the father of the H-bomb, told a television audience yesterday the United States has lagged behind Russia in science and thus has lost a battle more important and greater than Pearl Harbor.

He did not directly speak of missiles in the general discussion program, but said this country is in a "very bad and dangerous" situation now and that rebuilding U.S. prestige in science "will be a long and hard struggle." He called among other things for more recognition for scientists.

Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, who heads the Preparedness subcommittee, said the group later will hear secret testimony from Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, Secretary of Defense McNamara, Undersecretary Donald Quarles, and William Holladay, who heads the department's missile programs.

Two subcommittee members, Senator Bridges (R-Mt.) and Senator D. Magnus (D-Mt.), in interviews they gave the hearings will clear up what they call a division of authority between Holladay and Dr. James R. Killian, whom President Eisenhower has named as a special assistant to coordinate scientific development.

Both Bridges and Magnus called for designation of a single authority to handle the job.

"We have got to have a top missile man with authority to make his program work at top speed," Bridges said.

ment and blocked highways. All regular means of communication were cut and the only news of the tragedy leaked out via amateur radio ham.

One of the seven killed in the landslide was a 5-month-old boy. The remaining six were still buried under hundreds of tons of rock and mud. Rescuers found an 18-month-old girl alive in the rubble.

More than 50 bulldozers, cranes and power saws were plowing through the debris in a search for the bodies of the victims.

Snow Falls in Northern Areas of U. S.

By The Associated Press

Snow fell in some Northern areas and widespread rain hit sections of the South today but generally fair weather prevailed in other parts of the country.

It was cold in most of the Northern half of the country from the Rockies to New England.

The heaviest snow reported in 30 years fell in western and southern Texas over the weekend. The 14 inches which blanketed Concho County in lower west Central Texas was a record fall.

Snow also fell at Laredo, on the Mexican border, the first in more than 10 years. Temperatures at Laredo, usually one of the nation's hot spots, dropped to freezing. The frosty weather ruined the tomato crop in the Laredo area and tipped winter vegetables in the lush lower Rio Grande Valley areas at the southern tip of Texas.

The precipitation in the South occurred in association with a weak low in northern Florida. Heavy rainfall hit some areas in rain, drizzle and fog extended from Arkansas and Louisiana

Couple Dies After Wedding Reception

QUINCY, Mass. (AP)—A man and wife perished early today in a fire at their home shortly after a happy wedding reception for their daughter.

The last of 150 guests had left the two-story house when it burst into flames and took the lives of John Thorbahn, 52, and his wife eastward through the Carolinas and Florida; Hall and sleet pelled parts of Alabama. Hail stones the size of golf balls were reported at Cullman, in north central Alabama.

Ann, 50.

A son, John Jr., 22, was burned on the body and was taken to Quincy city hospital in serious condition.

Another son, Peter, 13, escaped injury.

The flames destroyed all the wedding presents of the couple, who had been married at First Church of Squantum, Congregational, and had their reception at the Thorbahn residence in the Squantum section of Quincy.

The bride, Carol, 23, and the bridegroom, Thomas Graham, also 23, of Saugus, had left on their honeymoon and were sought by relatives to inform them of the tragedy.

Husband Making With Small Talk Wife Feels He's Not Impressive

Dear Dorothy Dix: My husband was recently introduced to the wife of a business acquaintance and their 17-year-old daughter. He acknowledged the introduction, and asked, "Which is the daughter?" Now this woman had bleached hair, was heavily made up and I'm sure there was no doubt in my husband's mind as to which was which. Then my husband turned to her husband and said, "So this is your wife. Some guys have all the luck!" Don't you think the remark was too personal and too forward? Don't you think the woman might have thought my husband was making a play for her? Do you think these people will consider my husband a man of good character, or a wolf?

P. R.
Dear P. R.: Many meaningless things are said in the course of making small talk, and your husband's remarks were strictly of this genre. He was merely acting the gallant to a woman who probably looked as if she could use a little perk up. Please don't make his life miserable by harping on the incident. Believe me, during any social evening, meaningless flatteries like this, little observations and sweet nothings flow like ginger ale.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm 24, single and a newcomer to America. I'm very much in love with a girl who works with me. However, I'm also very shy, and try as I might, I cannot get up enough courage to say anything to her except on necessary business. Please come to my rescue with some suggestions.

LEON

Dear Leon: There's a whole world of conversational material around and most of it can't fail to win a response. As a stranger in our land, you naturally evoke sympathy and advice — feminine attributes of irresistible force. Ask questions about places, customs, people, language. This should surely provide an opening. Hope you are not too shy to take it up from there.

BETH

Dear Beth: The problem is not nearly as unusual as you think it is.

You could see a doctor of better still, a marriage counselor. I have a list of books that also will provide considerable insight on the subject. Send a self-addressed stamped envelope, asking for recommended books on Marriage Adjustment. I'm sure it will help.

CONTRVERSIAL

This statue of Queen Elizabeth II, the work of Nigerian sculptor Ben Enwonwu, has stirred up an artistic controversy in London where some critics have condemned it on grounds that it has "Africanized" the monarch's features. Scheduled to be cast in bronze and installed in the Federal House of Representatives in Lagos, Nigeria, the statue will commemorate the queen's tour of that country last year.

Rice Has Fine Chance for Cotton Bowl

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Five important things can happen this week in Southwest Conference football—Texas A&M or Texas could win the title. Rice could tie it. Rice and Texas A&M could tie for it. Rice and Texas could tie for it.

Never did the league face a week fraught with more possibilities and it takes just two games to decide which possibility will become reality.

The first game—the traditional battle between Texas and Texas A&M, a 63-year-old rivalry—will be played Thursday at College Station. If A&M wins, Rice will have to beat Baylor in the second game—scheduled at Houston Saturday—to tie the Aggies for the title. If Texas wins, Rice could tie Baylor and tie Texas for the championship, or win the title by beating Baylor. But a Rice loss would give the crown to Texas.

In all events the Cotton Bowl host spot will be riding on the results. A Texas A&M-Rice tie would give the Cotton Bowl to Rice, a Texas-Rice tie would give the bowl to Texas. A clean-cut championship for any of the three teams would guarantee appearance in the Cotton Bowl.

The race reached this situation Saturday when Rice knocked over Texas Christian 20-0 and pulled into a mathematical tie with A&M for first place.

There are a couple of more games left on the schedule but neither means anything except Southern Methodist might finish near the top if it beat Texas Christian at Fort Worth Saturday. The Methodist victory Saturday, 14-7, last week to clinch fourth place. After this week there'll be only the Southern Methodist-Northern Conference clash Dec. 7 at Dallas.

Of course, some of the conference teams will be in bowl games. The winner will be in the Cotton Bowl and the runner-up is expected to go to the Sugar Bowl.

Arkansas closed the season last week by strapping Texas Tech 47-26 and also projecting it fullback, Gerald Nesbitt, as the year's leading scorer. Nesbitt made 14 points against Tech and pulled into first place with 51.

Porkers Finish Season With Smashing Win

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Steady George Walker, Arkansas' championship quarterback, flipped two touchdown passes to lead the Razorbacks to a lopsided 47-26 season-ending victory over Texas Tech Saturday.

It was quite a switch for the 20,000 fans who shivered in the 49-degree temperatures and watched Arkansas change its normally conservative ball control game to a homerun type of passing attack.

With Walker on the pitching and of a near-perfect combination, the Hogs snapped a three-game losing streak as well as a three-year head that had plagued them in their final game of the year.

Arkansas struck in the first three minutes on a 34-yard touchdown pass from Walker to end Bob Childress. It was the first play from scrimmage after a fumble, and it set the pattern for the rest of the game.

Five seconds into the free-scoring second quarter, halfback Donnie Stone took a pitchout seven yards around right end, clearing a 42-yard drive. Fullback Gerald Nesbitt's conversion made it 13-0.

Jim Weatherington, a fourth-string halfback, made the first touchdown of his college career in the second quarter on a thrilling pass lateral play which covered 44 yards.

Texas Tech scored its second touchdown on a brilliant pass play against the Arkansas third team. It covered 84 yards. Quarterback John Riddle threw to halfback John Roberts on the 30, and the fleet-footed halfback outran four Arkansas pursuers.

The Raiders broke into the scoring column midway of the second quarter with the help of a 15-yard penalty that put the ball on the Arkansas one-yard line. Another penalty moved it back to the six, but on the second play Jimmy Knox, the slick Tech halfback who has yet to lose a yard this season, wipped around right end for five yards and a score. Milton Vaughn converted.

In other Arkansas scoring, Walker passed to halfback Billy Kyser, and Nesbitt boomed over for two more, once in the second quarter and again in the fourth, both times from the one-yard line.

Midway in the third quarter, Arkansas and Billy Trauman blocked a Tech kick on the four yard line, and Arkansas recovered.

Late in the fourth quarter, Tech

In the battle of Mobile Bay, in 1864, during the War Between the States, Admiral David G. Farragut shouted his famous "Damn the Torpedoes!" sending his Union fleet over a line of torpedoes to silence the forts protecting the bay and to destroy a small Confederate fleet. During the battle, he had himself lashed to the mast of his ship so he could see over the smoke—all this, though he was a Southerner by birth.

Ohio State in Bid for Nat'l Football Title

By ED CORRIGAN
Of The Associated Press

Ohio State, the once-braten Big Ten champion, laid a bold claim today to the national collegiate football title for 1957.

The only team that appears to be in a position to challenge the powerful Buckeyes, who flattened Michigan 31-14 last weekend, is Auburn, king of the Southeastern Conference and one of the two remaining major undefeated teams. The Tigers and Arizona State of Tempe, a 41-0 winner over College of the Pacific, are 9-0 now.

A week ago, Michigan State was selected over Auburn as the No. 1 team in the weekly Associated Press poll. The Spartans also had been beaten once, but their powerful offense apparently was more impressive than Auburn's tough defense.

Now the Spartans may be eliminated after the rough time they had battling Kansas State 27-9.

Auburn gave its defensive unit some offensive support for a change last week, thumping Florida State 29-7. But Ohio State, once again showing its running strength, behind a dependable blocking line, came up with 372 yards rushing in its bid for the title.

Except for its opening game—Cot by Texas Christian—a team that hasn't done much since—the Buckeyes trampled everything in sight.

Ohio State will meet Oregon in the Rose Bowl and will rule the heavy favorite. Oregon was held to only a co-championship in the Pacific Coast Conference, losing 10-7 to Oregon State, last year's bowl team, which claimed a share of the title.

As for Auburn's credentials, the Tigers have only Alabama 26-1 between them and a perfect season. Auburn is on NCAA probation and ineligible to play in a bowl.

The host spot for the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans Jan. 1, usually reserved for the conference king, probably will go to Mississippi—If Ole Miss, idle last week, gets past ambitious Mississippi State.

The opponent will be determined by the Southwest Conference. If Rice beats Baylor Saturday, the Owls go to the Cotton Bowl, and Texas A&M probably will provide the SEC opposition in the Sugar Bowl.

Texas Christians 20-0 last weekend, A&M, idle after the 7-6 upset, by the Owls, plays Texas Thanksgiving Day.

The visiting team in the Cotton Bowl will be decided after Saturday's Army-Navy clash in Philadelphia. If Navy wins it, the Mid-dies, in all probability will head for Dallas.

The other major bowl, the Orange in Miami—is all set. Oklahoma, which started a new winning streak with a 32-7 victory over Nebraska Saturday, will meet Duke.

The Blue Devils were selected by the Atlantic Coast Conference although they took a 21-13 whipping from North Carolina Saturday. North Carolina State won the conference title with a 29-20 victory over South Carolina, but like Auburn is in the bad graces of the NCAA.

So no matter how it works out, there won't be an undefeated team in any of the four major bowls. That's a rarity.

moved within striking distance on a 17-yard pass from Jerry Bell to Pat Hartsfield, and Ronnie Rice swept right end from the two.

In the final three minutes, Rice took a kickoff and romped 70 yards up the middle to the Arkansas 10-yard line. Bell flipped 10 yards to Knox for the score two plays later. Bell converted.

Sputnik Rocket Still in Air — Not for Long

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
WASHINGTON (UP)—U. S. scientists prepared today to feed new sighting data into an electronic brain in an effort to predict more accurately when Sputnik I's rocket engine will fall.

Predictions during the weekend that the rocket's fall was imminent were not borne out. One British astronomer who had made such a prediction revised it to say the rocket is expected to last for several days.

Last night, the rocket was sighted by skywatchers over northeastern United States.

Dr. John White, staff scientist at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass., said those and other lighting reports would be used in a new computation of the rocket's present orbit.

White said the new data fell into an electronic brain at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, may permit a more accurate forecast of when the rocket will take its fatal plunge.

Some scientists have expressed a belief that Sputnik I, a 184-pound sphere, will stay in course for several weeks longer than its carrier rocket because the drag on it is much less than on the rocket.

Contrary to popular thinking, Westminster Abbey has not always been a great church where English kings are crowned and the famous dead are buried. The abbey was probably begun during the eighth century as a home for Benedictine monks, who lived a simple life there compared to the pomp and ceremony connected with present-day coronations in the abbey. A new church at Westminster was begun about 1050 by Edward the Confessor, and every British monarch from William the Conqueror to Elizabeth the Second was crowned there, except Edward the Fifth, who was slain in the Tower of London as a boy.

'The Innocent Years' Fine Entertainment

By CHARLES MERGER

NEW YORK (UP)—One of the fascinating aspects of "The Innocent Years" on NBC-TV was that we never would have had this intimate portrait of an era if it were not for the invention of television.

The "Project 20" creation of the age between 1900 and World War I was one of those occasions when a snob who does not believe that television can provide artful entertainment should regret his refusal to buy a TV set.

We are indebted to the creative spirit and exacting labor displayed by Henry Salomon and his excellent staff in bringing "The Innocent Years" into the home. It should be repeated.

The narration, spoken by Alexander Scourby from a script by Salomon and Richard Hanser, was absorbing. Adaptations of musical scores of the period by Robert Russell Bennett helped capture the authentic atmosphere of the age.

I was especially struck by one aspect of "The Innocent Years"—as aspect that came through unconsciously on the old films and was noted by Daniel Jones, who led the long search for the material. Did you notice the vigorous actions of the people in the days of grandfather's prime?

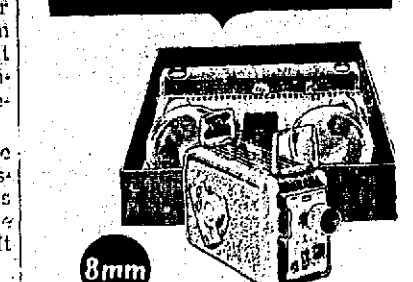

When Teddy Roosevelt chopped a tree, he slaughtered it. When William Howard Taft hit a golf ball, he killed it. When Mark Twain had a movie camera pushed in his face, he snarled at it. When Thomas A. Edison, who suffered from deafness, couldn't hear an assistant, he jammed a fist on his desk.

Perhaps it takes the lapse of a half-century to find positive virtues in an era. With all its faults, that age had virtues which shone in "The Innocent Years." The program revealed there was happiness in innocence.

Lane May Be in Trouble With Trading

By JOE MOOSHIL
CHICAGO (U. S. —) Frank Lane, baseball's master trader who was recently appointed general manager of the Cleveland Indians, might have trouble swinging deals in the American League this season.

Lane, huddled yesterday with Vice President Chuck Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox.

"I'm out to get our club a second baseman or a shortstop or both," he said. "I'm willing to trade but I must get what I need and those are our two weak positions."

He admitted he'll have trouble trading but hoped to be able to consummate the deals he has in mind.

"I couldn't do anything with Comiskey but we have a lot of time," he said.

"I'm willing to trade Ray Narleski or Early Wynn for infield strength but I have to get what I want."

The Sox expressed interest in pitchers Don Mossi, Nalieski and Wynn but when Lane asked for second baseman Nelson Fox and shortstop Luis Aparicio, the talks ended.

Lane was still disappointed about missing out on infielder Billy Martin who went from Kansas City to Detroit in a multiplayer deal.

"I wanted Martin badly," said Lane, "but I know I won't be able to get him now. I have an outfielder to trade but I won't deal for another outfielder just to make an exchange. We need help in the infield and something will break soon."

Discussion Held for New Pro Loop

NEW YORK (UP) — Representatives from Brooklyn, Jersey City, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse held an eight-hour meeting Saturday to discuss forming an Eastern Professional Football League.

Ronald Morgan of Rochester, spokesman for the group, said the league hoped to begin playing in 1958 or 1959 and would not ask for a working agreement with the National Football League.

"We don't want a working agreement with the National Football League because we don't want to be a farm system for anyone," Morgan said. "We think there are enough players who don't make National League teams to give us a great deal of talent."

"Each team will operate on an annual budget to about $200,000. We have been working on formation of this league for two months now and this was our third meeting."

Earlier yesterday Mitchell hinted broadly that the Kansas "U. M." had substance.

"I'd never consider leaving Arkansas for any other job other than for the opportunity to head up the program in the state where I was raised and among lifelong friends," he said.

Mitchell, former Oklahoma University quarterback, is a native of Kansas.

SPUTNIK III—Claude Bopp, 56, who is starting his 34th year as a truck driver, poses alongside his truck at his Trenton, N.J., home. Bopp has driven 3,300,000 miles without a chargeable accident. This works out to no less than 132 trips around the earth and it would appear that his nearest competitors in this department are the Russian Sputniks.

GOURD GOSH!—Gardening experts will be hard put to top Mrs. G. M. McDaniel of Memphis, Tenn., who displays the results of "just planting" a few seeds in her yard. One vine sprang up, spreading over the garage and nearby trees, and bearing 60 giant gourds, some 40 inches long. Unfortunately they aren't good to eat, so Mrs. McDaniel plans to use the gourds for ornaments, bird houses, planters, clippers, etc., etc.

HIGH AND DRY—Like a beached leviathan, this Saudi Arabian tanker, one of the world's biggest, rests in drydock for its first overhaul in the Hamburg, Germany, shipyard launched in 1954. The tanker, 704 feet long, and capable of carrying 47,000 tons of oil, was the largest postwar ship built in Germany at that time. This full-length photograph of the vessel was taken from a 250-foot-high crane.

DOUBLE DRUMMERS—Little David Wilson gets some first-hand pointers on the art of drumming from cadet drummer Thomas Sherry. Sherry, from Appleton, Wis., has been drumming in the academy's Sunday dress parade. David is the son of a faculty member and a future cadet at Wentworth, Lexington, Mo.

Think of The Persons in Buying Gifts

By GAIL DUGAS
NEA Women's Editor

When you shop for a gift for the most important man in your Christmas list, take your cue from the kind of person he is. Is he bookish, outdoorsy, a gourmet or a travel fiend?

Whatever, the clue to the gift that will please him most lies in his enthusiasms about living. He may even drop a hint as to what he'd like to have, but men are not as subtle and clever about this sort of thing as women.

If you really want to do the thing up handsomely give him one gift that's a luxury and one that's practical. In other words, something to wear. There's a sound reason for this. American men are notably generous, to the point where their wives usually have by far the larger wardrobes. So most men are usually in need of shirts, sweaters, robes, socks, ties, handkerchiefs, pajamas and anything else that's wearable.

This year, they get a break in the new shirts that are 100 per cent cotton, broadcloth and can be washed and worn without ironing. These new shirts will go a long way in overcoming the resistance of many men to drip-dry shirts. They have all of the advantages of a regular shirt and none of the discomforts or disadvantages of the first drip-dry shirts. Further, they have permanent collar stays or button-down collars.

Leisure clothes now play a more important part in the lives of most men, so a cotton knit sport shirt or two won't go wrong under his Christmas tree. Look for careful tailoring and colors that are neat but not gaudy. An alternate, of course, is the leather shirt, definitely a luxury item but one that most men will appreciate.

Small gifts in leather are ideal gifts. The alligator secretary wallet or slim wallet are both luxuries, both gifts of which you can be proud. Or, give him a very slim evening wallet in pin seal with 14 karat gold edges. You might add a pin seal key case and wallet combination for daytime use and tuck an eye glass case into his stocking.

One of the best looking grooming sets new for Christmas giving this year, combines after shave lotion and stick deodorant in heather scent. Both come in containers covered with plaid fabric and capped with golden tops.

Margaret Says She Hasn't Been Away

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — "Comeback?" says Margaret Truman. "I didn't know I had been away."

That was her reaction to comments on the resumption of her career as a performer. Absent for more than a year because of the birth of her son, Clifton Truman Daniel, she was here to perform a dramatic role on Matinee Theatre and do some singing with Gisselle McKenzie.

"I must admit that I was more nervous before the matinee show than I've ever been in my life," she said.

Despite this, she drew good notices from the reviewers, not to mention her No. 1 fan, former President Truman. She reported that her father saw it on a color set in her apartment in New York, where he was visiting.

Miss Truman also drew unexpected praise from Ethel Barrymore, an inveterate TV fan who caught the show and said her work was "exceptionally good."

All this has helped spur Margaret on to new activity — she spurns the word "comeback."

"I still have from 9 to 12 shows to do for NBC each year," she explained. "It is basically the same contract I have had since 1950, though they let me off last year. I guess they didn't want a very pregnant lady appearing on their shows."

She is married to Clifton Daniel Jr., assistant to the managing editor of the New York Times. Does he approve her working?

"I wouldn't be doing it if he didn't," she replied dutifully. Margaret seemed happier and more at ease than she has on previous visits here, and she admitted that she enjoyed her new life.

"I've been close to the newspaper life, but always on the receiving end," she remarked. "Now I'm on the other side, and I find it very enjoyable. About half our friends are in the news field and half in show business. But we know many people in other fields, too; you can do that in New York."

She admitted that it was a shock to her husband to find himself on the receiving end of the news.

She hinted that he received another blow after their marriage: her cooking.

Margaret Has Royal Group Very Worried

LONDON — A London newspaper says displays of independence by Princess Margaret are causing a stir in Buckingham Palace.

The Sunday Express reported that Margaret is determined to establish that not only is she a princess but a woman of personality in her own right.

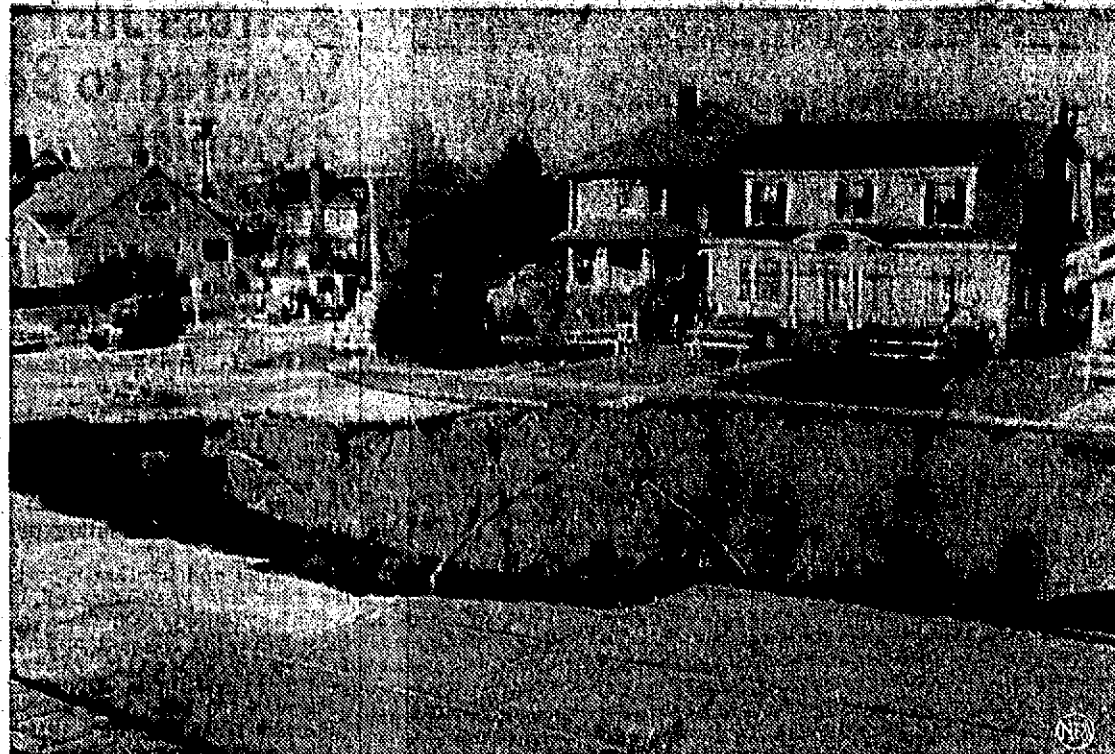

The newspaper said the princess shocked Queen Elizabeth II by going out on the town last Wednesday instead of staying at the palace to celebrate the 10th wedding anniversary of the Queen and Prince Philip. Other close relatives attended the palace party.

Margaret was invited but changed her mind at the last minute, the Express said. Instead, the Queen's vivacious 27-year-old sister went to the theater with friends and then dined at the fashionable Savoy Hotel.

She showed up at the palace just before the party ended.

The Express gave this account: "Her midnight arrival at the anniversary party came as a particular shock to the royal family when they found that, in addition to going to the theater, she had gone on to supper, and that she had gone to a public restaurant for this."

Margaret failed to attend the royal showing of "Les Girls" two weeks ago with the Queen and Prince Philip, despite the fact that she reportedly had no other engagement. She saw the movie last Thursday with her own friends.

WHERE DID IT GO?—Police have barricaded the homes bordering on this huge hole which opened on the parkway at 18th and Ravenna streets in Seattle, Wash. The hole developed about midnight and quickly enlarged into a crater approximately 45 feet deep, 40 feet wide and 60 feet long. A large chestnut tree was swallowed up. City engineers are attempting to determine what caused the crater.

High spirited and gay, the princess often has been the center of attention at dances and parties. Interest in her has grown since she bowed to family and church and publicly rejected the love of Group Capt. Peter Townsend, a divorced World War II hero, two years ago.

Can't Keep Woman From Filing Suit

LITTLE ROCK — The Arkansas Supreme Court today held that a Little Rock woman could not be enjoined from filing a breach of promise suit against a Little Rock man.

The court's unanimous decision, written by Associate Justice Minor W. Millwee, partly reversed a ruling of former Pulaski Chancellor Sam Rorex.

Rorex granted an injunction restraining Miss E. M. Webber from harassing G. W. Gray by sending him letters, taking telephone calls, following him in her automobile and filing a threatened breach of promise action.

The Supreme Court upheld Ror-

Diego Rivera of Art World Dies at 70

By CHARLES H. GUPPILL

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Diego Rivera whose violent paints and defiant politics made him a charging bull in the world of art, died of a heart attack early today in his studio at suburban San Angel. He was 70.

Until phlebitis paralyzed his right hand and arm several weeks ago, he was working on three paintings with the zest which characterized his work for half a century.

A heart specialist had said the artist's condition was worsening, but friends had thought he might live until the end of the year.

Only members of his family and his physician were present when he died. He is survived by his fourth wife, Ana Gualdrup, and two daughters, Ruth and Guadalupe.

Rivera had been in and out of the Communist party since 1922. He returned only last year from Russia and proclaimed that Soviet medicine had cured him of cancer.

except insofar as the threatened court action was concerned.

A person may not be prohibited from filing a suit for personal damages, the Supreme Court said. Miss Webber at one time was cited for contempt of court and given a suspended jail sentence for violation of the Chancellor's order.

It's the Plymouth "Money-Ahead" Contest, where a lifetime of financial security is ripe for the taking. Few things are more substantial than money, and a lot of money is the grand prize. But this is a contest where you can win big without hauling down first prize. For 18 sparkling new Plymouths and 450 other valuable prizes will be awarded. Now here's what you do:

Go into your Plymouth Dealer's and ask him for a contest blank. You don't have to be a mental giant to shoot for this big money. This contest is fun, and it's easy.

You simply unscramble seven easy words and terms, like the one you see in the example to the right. Then add your own short version of why you'd be there ahead in a '58 Plymouth. Believe us, there are plenty of good reasons you can use: Torsion-Aire, Total-Contact Brakes, Silver Dart Style, Push-Button Driving, new Golden Commando engines, etc. Unscramble or scramble — but you better not amble — to your Plymouth Dealer soon. The fun starts Monday, Nov. 25.

Discussion Held for New Pro Loop

NEW YORK (UP) — Representatives from Brooklyn, Jersey City, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse held an eight-hour meeting Saturday to discuss forming an Eastern Professional Football League.

Ronald Morgan of Rochester, spokesman for the group, said the league hoped to begin playing in 1958 or 1959 and would not ask for a working agreement with the National Football League.

"We don't want a working agreement with the National Football League because we don't want to be a farm system for anyone," Morgan said. "We think there are enough players who don't make National League teams to give us a great deal of talent."

"Each team will operate on an annual budget of about $200,000.
We have been working on formation of this league for two months now and this was our third meeting."

"The name that frequently mentioned as Mother's successor is Mitchell."

Earlier yesterday Mitchell hinted broadly that the Kansas "tur-mor" had substance.
"I'd never consider leaving Arkansas for any other job other than for the opportunity to head up the program in the state where I was raised and among lifelong friends," he said.

Mitchell, former Oklahoma University quarterback, is a native of Kansas.

CHICAGO (UP) — Frank Lane, baseball's master trader who was recently appointed general manager of the Cleveland Indians, might have trouble swinging deals in the American League this season.

Lane huddled yesterday with Vice President Chuck Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox.

"I'm out to get our club a second baseman or a shortstop or both," he said. "I'm willing to trade but I must get what we need and those are our two weak positions."

He admitted he'll have trouble trading but hopes to be able to consummate the deals he has in mind.

"I couldn't do anything with Comiskey but we have a lot of time," he said.

"I'm willing to trade Ray Narjeski or Early Wynn for infield strength but I have to get what I want."

The Sox expressed interest in pitchers Don Mossi, Narjeski and Wynn but when Lane asked for second baseman Nelson Fox and shortstop Luis Aparicio, the talks ended.

Lane was still disappointed about missing out on infielder Billy Martin who went from Kansas City to Detroit in a multipay-er deal.

"I wanted Martin badly," said Lane, "but I know I won't be able to get him now. I have an outfielder to trade but I won't deal for another outfielder just to make an exchange. We need help in the infield and something will break soon."

SPUTNIK III—Claude Bopp, 56, who is starting his 34th year as a truck driver, poses alongside his truck at his Trenton, N.J., home. Bopp has driven 3,300,000 miles without a chargeable accident. This works out to no less than 132 trips around the earth and it would appear that his nearest competitors in this department are the Russian Sputniks.

GOURD CASH!—Gardening experts will be hard put to top Mrs. G. M. McDaniels of Memphis, Tenn., who displays the results of "just planting a few seeds in her yard." One vine sprang up, spreading over the garage and nearby trees, and bearing 60 giant gourds, some 40 inches long. Unfortunately they aren't good to eat, so Mrs. McDaniels plans to use the gourds for ornaments, bird houses, planters, dippers, etc., etc.

HIGH AND DRY!—Like a beached leviathan, this Saudi Arabian tanker, one of the world's biggest, rests in drydock for its first overhaul in the Hamburg, Germany, shipyard that launched it in 1954. The tanker 764 feet long, and capable of carrying 47,000 tons of oil, was the largest postwar ship built in Germany at that time. This full-length photograph of the vessel was taken from a 250-foot-high crane.

Think of The Persons in Buying Gifts

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Women's Editor

When you shop for a gift for the most important man on your Christmas list, take your cue from the kind of person he is. Is he bookish, outdoorsy, a gourmet or a travel fiend?

Whatever, the clue to the gift that will please him most lies in his enthusiasms about living. He may even drop a hint as to what he'd like though most men are not as subtle and clever about this sort of thing as women.

If you really want to do the thing up handsomely give him one gift that's a luxury and one that's practical. In other words, something to wear. There's a sound reason for this. American men are notably generous, to the point where their wives usually have by far the larger wardrobes. So most men are usually in need of shirts, sweaters, robes, socks, ties, handkerchiefs, pajamas and anything else that's wearable.

This year, they get a break in the new shirts that are 100 per cent cotton broadcloth and can be washed and worn without ironing. These new shirts will go a long way in overcoming the resistance of many men to drip-dry shirts. They have all of the advantages of a regular shirt and none of the discomforts or disadvantages of the first drip-dry shirts. Further, they have permanent collar stays or button-down collars.

Leisure clothes now play a more important part in the lives of most men, so a cotton knit sport shirt or two won't go wrong under his Christmas tree. Look for careful tailoring and colors that are neat but not gaudy. An alternate, of course, is the leather shirt, definitely a luxury item but one that most men will appreciate.

Small gifts in leather are ideal gifts. The alligator secretary wallet or slim wallet are both luxuries, both gifts of which you can be proud. Or, give him a very slim evening wallet in pin seal with 14 karat gold edges. You might add a pin seal key case and wallet combination for daytime use and tuck an eye glass case into his stocking.

One of the best looking grooming sets now for Christmas giving this year, combines after shave lotion and stick deodorant in heather scent. Both come in containers covered with plaid fabric and capped with golden tops.

Margaret Says She Hasn't Been Away

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — "Comeback?" says Margaret Truman. "I didn't know I had been away."

That was her reaction to comments on the resumption of her career as a performer. Absent for more than a year because of the birth of her son, Clifton Truman Daniel, she was here to perform a dramatic role on Matinee Theatre and do some singing with Gisel McKeen.

"I must admit that I was more nervous before the matinee show than I've ever been in my life," she said.

Despite this, she drew good notices from the reviewers, not to mention her No. 1 fan, former President Truman. She reported that her father saw it on a color set in her apartment in New York, where he was visiting.

Miss Truman also drew unexpected praise from Ethel Barrymore, an inveterate TV fan who caught the show and said her work was "exceptionally good."

All this has helped spur Margaret on to new activity, she spurns the word "comeback."

"I still have from 9 to 12 shows to do for NBC each year," she explained. "It is basically the same contract I have had since 1950, though they let me off last year. I guess they didn't want a very pregnant lady appearing on their shows."

She is married to Clifton Daniel Jr., assistant to the managing editor of the New York Times. Does he approve her working?

"I wouldn't be doing it if he didn't," she replied dutifully.

Margaret seemed happier and more at ease than she has on previous visits here, and she admitted that she enjoyed her new life.

"I've been close to the newspaper life, but always on the receiving end," she remarked. "Now I'm on the other side, and I find it very enjoyable. About half our friends are in the news field and half in show business. But we know many people in other fields, too; you can do that in New York."

She admitted that it was a shock to her husband to find himself on the receiving end of the news.

She hinted that he received another blow after their marriage, her cooking.

Margaret Has Royal Group Very Worried

LONDON — A London newspaper says displays of independence by Princess Margaret are causing a stir in Buckingham Palace.

The Sunday Express reported that Margaret is determined "to establish that not only is she a princess but a woman of personality in her own right."

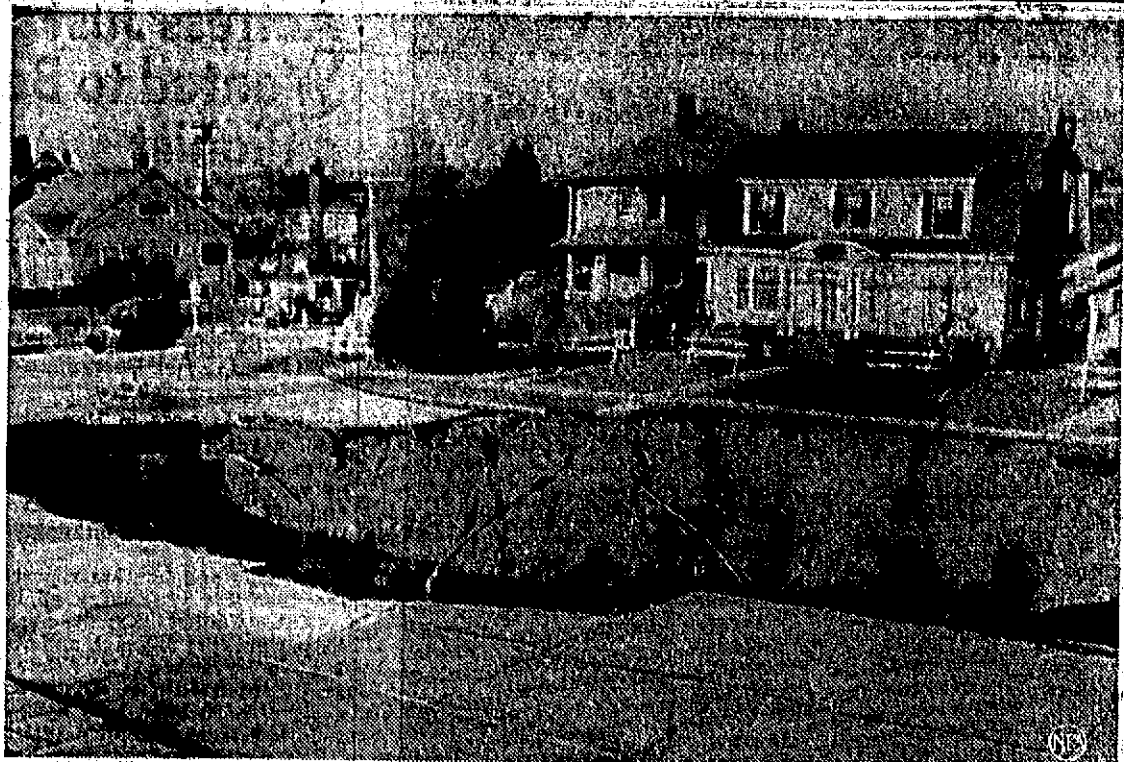

The newspaper said the princess shocked Queen Elizabeth II by going out on the town last Wednesday instead of staying at the palace to celebrate the 10th wedding anniversary of the Queen and Prince Philip. Other close relatives attended the palace party.

Margaret was invited but changed her mind at the last minute, the Express said. Instead, the Queen's vivacious 27-year-old sister went to the theater with friends and then dined at the fashionable Savoy Hotel.

She showed up at the palace just before the party ended.

The Express gave this account: "Her midnight arrival at the anniversary party came as a particular shock to the royal family when they found that, in addition to going to the theater, she had gone on to supper and that she had gone to a public restaurant for this."

Margaret failed to attend the royal showing of "Les Girls" two weeks ago with the Queen and Prince Philip, despite the fact that she reportedly had no other engagement. She saw the movie last Thursday with her own friends.

WHERE DID IT GO?—Police have barricaded the homes bordering on this huge hole which opened on the parkway at 16th and Ravenna streets in Seattle, Wash. The hole developed about midnight and quickly enlarged into a crater approximately 45 feet deep, 40 feet wide and 60 feet long. A large chestnut tree was swallowed up. City engineers are attempting to determine what caused the crater.

High spirited and gay, the princess often has been the center of attention at dances and parties. Interest in her has grown since she bowed to family and church and publicly rejected the love of Group Capt. Peter Townsend, a divorced World War II hero, two years ago.

Can't Keep Woman From Filing Suit

LITTLE ROCK — The Arkansas Supreme Court today held that a Little Rock woman could not be enjoined from filing a breach of promise suit against a Little Rock man.

The court's unanimous decision, written by Associate Justice Mil-or W. Milwage, partly reversed a ruling of former Pulaski Chancellor Sam Rorex.

Rorex granted an injunction restraining Miss E. M. Webber from harassing G. W. Gray by sending him letters, making telephone calls, following him in her automobile and filing a threatened breach of promise action. The Supreme Court upheld Rorex.

Diego Rivera of Art World Dies at 70

By CHARLES H. GUPPILL

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Diego Rivera whose violent paints and defiant politics made him a chameleon in the world of art, died of a heart attack early today in his studio at suburban San Angel. He was 70.

Until phlebitis paralyzed his right hand and arm several weeks ago, he was working on three paintings with the zest which characterized his work for half a century.

A heart specialist had said the artist's condition was worsening, but friends had thought he might live until the end of the year.

Only members of his family and his physician were present when he died. He is survived by his fourth wife, Ana Hurlade, and two daughters, Ruth and Gladys Lupe.

Rivera had been in and out of the Communist party since 1922. He returned only last year from Russia and proclaimed that Soviet medicine had cured him of cancer.

except insofar as the threatened civil action was concerned. A person may not be prohibited from filing a suit for personal damages, the Supreme Court said.

Miss Webber at one time was cited for contempt of court and given a suspended jail sentence for violation of the Chancery Court order.

AVA GETS HER BUMPS?—Ava Gardner, the Spanish foremost bullfighter from horseback, Angel Peralta, practice the traditional motions of "Al Almon," a variation of the usual bullfighting with a cloak in which two persons handle the garment. The action in Peralta's private ring near Madrid, may have been what sent Ava into seclusion on her return to her London hotel. She reportedly was bitten, up-ended and kicked in the neck and cheek, while trying her hand as a matador. Ava may have been practicing for the role of a bullfighter reportedly offered to her in a Hollywood film.

Actress Just Wanted to Be a Pianist

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — "I never really wanted to be an actress. I always hoped to be a pianist. But I had to eat, and acting seemed like the natural thing to do, since the family was already in it." This was Ethel Barrymore's relection on her career on the eve of a nationwide tribute to her 64 years as queen of the American theater. Tomorrow night, NBC will televise a "command performance" in her honor. Saluting her will be Tallulah Bankhead, Joseph Cotten, Hoagy Carmichael, daughter Ethel Barrymore, Colt, plus baseball greats Leo Durocher, Fred Haney, Casey Stengel and Roy Campanella.

This week Miss Barrymore gave one of her rare interviews in the Beverly Hills apartment where she lives with her son Sammy Colt. At 78, she doesn't get around as much as she used to. But as she spoke, she demonstrated she still has the Barrymore fire and the ability to impale an interviewer on his own questions.

What does she think about all this fuss over her on TV? "Why, I think it's very complimentary," she snapped. "Who wouldn't be honored by it? What a strange question!"

The bedroom was dominated by the great eye of a TV set and asked if she watched it much. "Yes, I watch it," she replied. "I have seen some of my old pictures lately. It's the first time I've seen myself on the screen."

Her classic reply as to why she never saw her pictures has always been: "I never saw myself on the stage."

So what does she think of Ethel Barrymore the actress now that she has seen herself?

"I wasn't to greatly upset," she said. "Baseball is always an easier topic to discuss with her. I asked her how she felt about big league teams moving to the Coast. She said she was neither a Giant or Dodger fan; she's a "baseball fan" with a capital B.

"What disturbs me is the empty seats I see in the stadiums even when big teams play on the Saturday games on TV," she commented. "I saw a pro football

Runners-up to Balding's 209 were Berl Weaver of Beaumont, Tex., and Dow Finsterwald of Tiquessa, Fla., with 210.

Plenty Quail But They Are Hard To Get

LITTLE ROCK — There are more quail in Arkansas right now than anytime in the past fifteen years, according to Clyde Goddard, quail technician for the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission.

Goddard's prediction, made yesterday in his annual pre-season quail population report, followed the Game and Fish Department's October-November survey of thirteen different areas scattered throughout the State.

"We had a good bird crop last year," Goddard said, "and I didn't expect it to be any better this year, however, I honestly believe we have more quail now than at any time since 1943."

Goddard singled out this year's excellent food and cover conditions as the major factor in the increased number of birds. "Not only is vegetation growth extremely good, but all over the state there is the widest distribution of cover I have ever seen," he said.

"The conditions which should prove most favorable for hunter success are those of the open fields. Whereas in recent years past, most food was in the woods, this year we have a poor post oak, acorn crop and a high maturity of all other foods. That, of course, should make field hunting much better."

Goddard said the coveys, on the average, are usually large and that there appears to be an excellent hatch in all sections of the state, except the delta counties. There, high water resulted in a lack of nesting sites.

"According to our surveys, only two counties, Greene and Jackson, show a low quail population," Goddard said. "And it's especially encouraging that western Arkansas, hardest hit during the drought years, has a wonderful bird crop this time."

The commission's quail technicians make two population surveys each year, one in October-November before the hunting season and another during February-March. The 13 survey areas comprise a total of 14,400 acres.

"There is only one disturbing problem throughout the state today," Goddard said. "That's the amount of posted territory. Of course, some of this is due to hunter conduct. However, a lot of land is posted because the landowner by doing so, believes he will build up a much larger bird population."

"Unfortunately, that is not what happens. The land will support just so many birds each year, and the failure to harvest some of them means they are simply going to waste."

"We should always strive for an improved hunter-landowner relationship; but, at the same time, there needs to be a better understanding of quail harvest in relation to population from year to year."

Quail Data Wanted
The Arkansas Game and Fish Commission will again collect quail wings and hunter success reports this coming bird season.

Bill Staub, Commission technician, said the right wings of 100 quail from each county will be collected by the State's Game Wardens. He pointed out that as many of the wings as possible would be collected within the first 10 days of the season.

"By getting wings the first part of the hunting season, we get much more and better age data than we can get from wings taken later on in the season," he said.

Aubrey Fowler, Chief of Enforcement, said the Wardens had been asked to select twenty bird hunters in each county to help with the hunting reports.

Each hunter will be asked to fill out a questionnaire for each of six different hunts. The report calls for information pertaining to the number of hunters in the party, number of dogs, hours hunted, the numbers of coveys flushed, total number of birds flushed, number of birds bagged (both cocks and hens) and the total number of cripples lost.

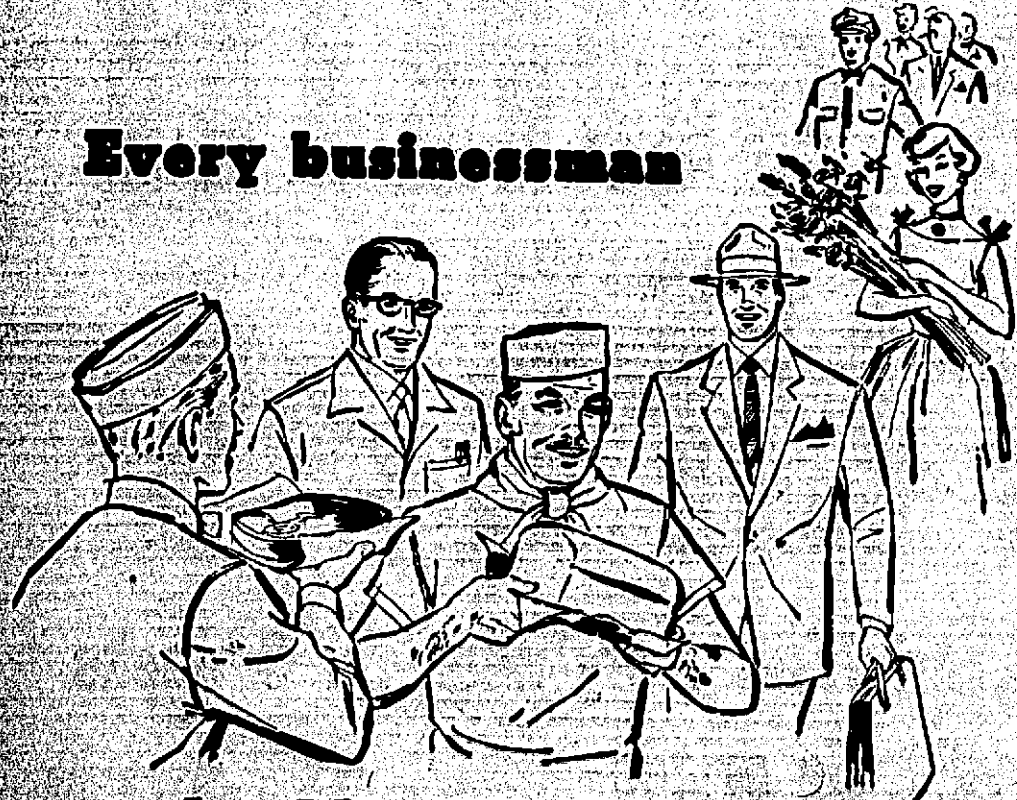

Quail season begins Dec. 1 and continues through Jan. 31. November Deer Kill Higher Than Expected

Nelson Cox, Director, Arkansas Game and Fish Commission, stated yesterday that the Arkansas deer kill for the November hunting period was higher than expected.

"Because of heavy rains and the extreme high water forcing many deer camps to close after opening day, we expected the November kill to fall far below last year's count," Cox said.

"However, an incomplete count to date shows 5,154 legal kills and all of the tags are not yet in. This

Some Tips on Latest Shows on Broadway

By BOB THOMAS
NEW YORK (U)—An out-of-town-her's views of some of the Broadway shows—

"Auntie Mame" shows how a wild character beautifully played can carry a show. The play is no great shakes, but Mame is a rich, wacky character expertly done by Rosalind Russell. Sheer delight.

"The Belle of Amherst" also proves the triumph of personality over material. The book and songs are slight but Judy Holliday and Sydney Chaplin put the show across with great skill and charm.

"The Cuckoo's Nest" has been hailed by the critics as William Saroyan at his best. Audiences must wonder, Saroyan has provided the players with some impressively theatrical scenes, but the over-all effect is one of puzzlement.

"Compulsion" is strong stuff. A sprawling, unwieldy play about the Loeb-Leopold case, it explores remote reaches of human behavior. The cast is superb and the material is absorbing. It seldom moves.

"Lil Abner" is a fast, light musical that presents the comic strip characters in faithful reproduction. What saves the whole thing from being grotesque is the pleasant good will of the players especially Peter Palmer, a ringer for the Dogpatch hero.

"Long Day's Journey Into Night" is Eugene O'Neill's rambling reminiscence of his tortured family. Fredric March, Florence Eldridge and Jason Robards make it alive and compelling.

"Look Back In Anger" takes a jaundiced view of modern life as seen through the eyes of a British intellectual rebel. Well played by an English cast, it is fascinating in a creepy kind of way.

"The Most Happy Fella" offers opera on a Broadway basis. The Frank Loesser score presents pop arias, which are beautifully sung. As with most operas the book is inclined to be a bore.

"My Fair Lady" is—well, "My Fair Lady," that's all. Most of the originals are still in the cast and they are sublime as is the show.

"Romanoff and Juliet" is a lightweight, charming spoof of the cold war. Best asset: Peter Ustinov in a brilliant role written by Peter Ustinov.

"West Side Story" is a tragic ballet presented as a musical play. The young cast is almost unbelievably talented and evokes an electrifying effect.

Consensus: Best comedy: "Auntie Mame." Best drama: "Long Day's Journey Into Night." Best musical: "My Fair Lady." Most imaginative: "West Side Story."

At least that's how it all seemed to me.

Cullen has been living this sort of schedule for years. But he doesn't show it; he looks far younger than his 36 years. And that fact Cullen credits to "my one talent. I can always fall asleep whenever I lie down."

Pulse affords an opportunity for Cullen's vivid imagination to indulge in a morning riot. For a time he kept a large audience amused with his plans to move Manhattan Island to the Caribbean. Everybody knew it was a joke—and enjoyed it all the more because various authorities on this and that (who also knew it was a joke, of course) leaped on the air and discussed it seriously.

But the Defense Department, when the decision was made to build these big bombers, was under the Truman administration. Truman never a nonpartisan and not a nonpartisan now, has blamed the delay in this country on the Eisenhower administration which, he said, broke up the missile program he started.

Bill Cullen Is a Real TV Frenetic

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (U)—Why is the world of television and radio so frequently called frenetic? Let's refer to the example of a witty, personable young man named Bill Cullen.

Cullen, in case anybody didn't know it, plays a split week of seven on TV shows and six radio programs. He gets up at 4:30 a. m. He's so busy that he sleeps in split shifts—three hours by day and five by night.

To be more factual about it Cullen presides over the destinies of Pulse, a very popular radio program on NBC's New York outlet Mondays through Fridays from 6 a. m. to 10 a. m. On Saturdays he isn't due on until 8 a. m. Then he taxes eight blocks to an NBC

THE STORY: Jim Bennett, a private investigator, has gotten off on the wrong foot with a prospective client, Hugo Howell, before Howell knows that Bennett is the detective assigned to the case. A fight with Bennett gets Howell locked in jail overnight. Jim calls at the jail the next morning but finds Howell has been released.

CHAPTER VII

Campbell spread his hands and said wearily, "I was busy this morning with other matters. Mr. Howell demanded to be released and I couldn't hold him, not without court action. He was sober and, frankly, I wanted him out—this is the day we clear the cells. That man who was with him last night—Lott—came after him. I gave Howell a warning about creating any further disturbances and he promised to behave. I didn't think it mattered.

"I wanted to see him here, before he starts rinking again." I was irritated, but decided to better keep on the good side of the law. I summoned a smile and added, "It's all right, Chief. I understand."

He watched me silently as I turned and went out.

I reached the Harbor House and entered the cool, dusky lobby. The elderly clerk there told me that Mr. Howell was in his room, No. 210. I asked him if a Mr. Lott was also registered.

"Yes, sir," he consulted a ledger. "Two twelve, right next door to Mr. Howell."

I thanked him, went up the carpeted stairs to 210 and knocked on the door. A gruff voice said, "Come in," and I did.

Hugo Howell was slouched in a chair by a table, a whisky bottle on the floor beside him and a glass in one hand resting on his bulging stomach.

Sitting in a chair by the window was the pale, pudgy man named Ambrose Lott.

I closed the door and nodded at Howell. "Good morning."

"Well, well," he said in his rasping ugly voice, "look who's here."

"Can we talk privately, Mr. Howell?" I cocked an eyebrow at Ambrose Lott.

"I ain't talking to no fancy, cocktail-drinking bar fly who picked a fight and got me locked up."

Lott stood up, took a slow step forward, his right hand snaking around to a hip pocket. "Don't try it," I said softly.

I watched Lott. His hand came clear holding a limp, leather-covered sap. I moved quickly and caught his wrist in one hand. He struggled and I slapped him hard across the face. He tried to squirm away, making no sound. I wrenched the sap from his hand and stepped clear. Howell shouted something.

I moved forward, grasped Ambrose Lott by an arm, hustled him to the door and shoved him out. His straw hat had fallen off. I kicked it out of my way and swung on Howell. He backed up, sudden fear in his eyes. "Now, look here," he said in a suddenly shrill voice. "I'm an old man and I don't want no trouble. I—I apologize for last night. It was my fault. Let's just forget it."

I cut him off. "All right, I'm not here because I want to—I cut him off. "All right, I'm work for the American Detective Agency and I have instructions to contact you."

He stared at me blankly, his mouth open, showing yellow teeth. Then he gulped and said, "You the man they sent?"

He sank back into his chair drank what remained of the whisky and looked up at me. "Don't that beat all? All the time I thought you was sore about last night, and it turns out you're working for me." He motioned to a chair. "Sit down, sit down. Have a drink." He leaned over and picked up the bottle from the floor.

"I don't need any hair of the dog," I said coldly. "Tell me what you want, and I'll tell you whether or not I'm working for you."

I wondered how he'd managed to sit so quiet, gentlemanly and serious son-like Wayne, who had snatched me from a watery grave the night before. And I hadn't forgotten the sap I'd taken from Ambrose Lott, which I still held in my hand.

He looked up at me slyly with red-rimmed eyes, the lips veined with red spider webs. "Independent cuss, ain't you? Why didn't you tell who you was last night?"

"I didn't have a chance."

He sighed and pulled a hand over his face. "Yes, yes, I know. My good wife would scream like a hen if she knew how I've been hitting the bottle lately. But I've got trouble. He sighed, took another drink from his glass. I up. I think a lot of Wayne — he's all I got any more. I'd hope he'd follow in my footsteps and be a machinist. A good one." He waved an arm hopelessly and his expression saddened. "None of this push-button, drill press, lathe, millwright stuff. I wanted him to be a real machinist, a top man, able to cut a gear to tolerance, make a bearing, figure stresses and design machinery, make gaskets and draw blue prints, lay out a whole production line, if he had to — the works."

He looked up at me and said bitterly, "But what do I get? A geologist?"
